

Art Fairs

The 8 Unmissable Booths at UNTITLED Miami Beach

From paintings to a radio broadcasting pavilion, here's what to see.

Brian Boucher, November 29, 2016

If you want to take advantage of both the beach and the art that's all over Miami right now, you couldn't do much better than to visit UNTITLED, which takes place in a tent right on the sand at Ocean Drive and 12th Street.

Here are some of the works and booths you shouldn't miss this year.

Ebony G. Patterson, (...when they grow up...), 2016. Courtesy Monique Meloche.

1. Ebony G. Patterson at Monique Meloche

The Jamaican artist's multimedia works are devoted to the memory of black youths; she incorporates images of the late teens' faces as well as decorative sculptures of guns, in addition to toys appropriate to the stage of life when they died. Prices range from $25–60,000. (The booth is also showing work by artist Sanford Biggers.)